This training will: take a simple approach to look at addiction as it impacts the brain, its effects on behavior, and how addiction to substances and/or alcohol compares to other chronic illnesses. Addiction is a brain disease that can be treated. Today’s science and medicine allows us to see how the brain is affected using brain imaging. We’ll explore various brain scans and the basics of what they mean. Seeing the effects, can help us further understand why addiction is so complex, and why recovery is far bigger than putting down the substance. We’ll also look at the science to examine its effects on recovery, reoccurrence, treatment and families.

Who should attend: Social Workers, Addiction Treatment and/or Prevention Professionals, Case Managers, Residential Providers, Parole and Probation Staff, School Counselors, Marriage and Family Therapists and others serving individuals with co-occurring psychiatric and substance use disorders or wanting to learn about the science of addiction.
